WHEREAS, the City Charter now requires redistricting at three distinct times:

- Not later than the first day of January of the year following the publication of the official federal census; or
- When increases or decreases in population render current districts substantially unequal in population; or
- When a third consecutive general election would be conducted using the same districts; and

WHEREAS, because of the timing of Kansas City municipal elections, every 20 years redistricting is required the year of the census and the year following when the official census is released; and

WHEREAS, this timing means that every 20 years the City Council must redistrict just months before the municipal primary election, thus inserting the politics of campaigning into the issue of redistricting; and
